

WOMEN REGISTER VOTERS IN CITY VOTING BOOTHS

Little Interest Taken in Registration Being Held Today—Only Congressional Race Brings Out Few.

For the first time in the history of Maysville women served as election officers at several voting booths in the city Tuesday when the general registration was held. In all instances the women proved most efficient clerks and the work of registration was kept up-to-the-minute all through the day.

Very little interest was shown throughout the day in registration. As the congressional race in November is the only fight at the polls for this year, the voters could muster up but a very little bit of enthusiasm. The women voters were not out in large numbers as in the last registration and even the men voters who have been casting votes for years displayed little interest.

Booths will be kept open until 9 o'clock Tuesday night and because of the long hours, it is barely possible that many have put off listing themselves as voters until the evening.

Those who do not register themselves today cannot vote in the coming November election and it is very important that all who desire to vote go to their regular voting booth and get their name on the registration book before the polls are closed Tuesday night at 9 o'clock.

REV. HARROP LOUISVILLE'S PRESIDING ELDER.

Rev. F. W. Harrop, former local pastor, who last year was pastor of the M. E. church at Somerset, was assigned at the Harrodsburg conference to the important position of District Superintendent of the Louisville district.

Rev. W. H. Morris, of this city, who for the past year has been pastor at Midway, was assigned to the pastorate at Nicholasville and will move there within a very short time.

NEW LOCAL PASTOR COMES FROM OLIVE HILL.

Rev. R. H. Harrison who has been assigned as pastor of the Forest avenue M. E. church, comes to Maysville from Olive Hill, where he has been pastor for the past year. Rev. Harrison is a native of Lewis county and has many warm personal friends in Maysville who join his congregation in extending a very hearty welcome to him.

Relatives and friends here learned Tuesday morning that Mr. Langhorn T. Anderson, prominent horseman who is now at the Jewish hospital, Cincinnati, suffered a relapse Monday night and is again in a critical condition.

GREAT FEATURE OFFERED AT PASTIME THIS WEEK

Manager Trieber Offers His Patrons an Opportunity to See the Big Fox Feature "Thunderclap."

"Thunderclap," the remarkable William Fox special scheduled for its premiere showing at the Pastime Theater on Wednesday and Thursday, is aptly heralded as "a thrilling melodramatic picture with a laugh every minute and a thrill every thirty seconds."

An all-star cast cleverly depicts the absorbing story of love, intrigue, romance and, last but not least, a horse race yet unequalled on the silver screen.

The colorful story of "Thunderclap" also brings to mind the more exciting days of yester-year when gambling flourished, when the raucous call of the roulette wheel attendant mingled with the shrill laughter of the bizarre feminine and when fortunes changed hands with monotonous regularity.

Into this world of gilt and flushed cheeks there comes the girl of the convent, ignorant of the ways of the world, the discovery of a true friend beneath the reeking atmosphere of drink and smoke and the result of the track performance of "Thunderclap" combine for a story which charms at the very outset and fascinates until the unwelcome end.

RICHMOND CAPITALIST DIES VERY SUDDENLY

Brother of Local Man Died Last Night Suddenly as He Was Calling at Home of a Neighbor.

Richmond, Ky., Oct. 3. — Harvey Chenault, 56 years, retired capitalist of this city, died here Monday night as a result of a heart attack suffered while calling at the home of a neighbor, C. H. Higgins. The attack came unexpectedly, death resulting before a physician could be summoned.

Mr. Chenault is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Hume Chenault, his mother, Mrs. T. D. Chenault, Sr., three sisters, Mrs. Nelson Prewitt Gay, of Winchester, Mrs. Albert T. McCown, of Madison county, and Mrs. Emerson Gwynne, of Baltimore, Md., and two brothers, John D. Chenault, of Maysville, and T. D. Chenault, Jr., of Madison county.

Mr. Chenault was one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of this county. He was a director in the State Bank and Trust company and a deacon in the First Baptist church at the time of his death. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

LYCEUM COURSE AT HIGH SCHOOL BEGINS ON NEXT TUESDAY

Maysville High School Lyceum Course For This Winter Will Consist of Seven High Class Numbers —First Next Tuesday.

Superintendent W. J. Caplinger, of the City Schools, has this to say of this year's Lyceum course which begins on next Tuesday evening:

Upon the request of a number of people of the city we discussed the matter of a Lyceum Course with the teachers last April and after promise on the part of the teachers that they would do their best to sell sufficient number of season tickets to guarantee the course, the following seven numbers were contracted for and will appear on the dates set opposite the names:

The Princess Nadonis Indians, Tuesday, October 10th.

The Electa Hunt Concert Company, Thursday, October 26th.

Ash Davis, Cartoonist, Friday, November 17th.

Harold M. Kramer, lecturer and novelist, Wednesday, December 20th.

The Pelletier Players, Friday, January 12th.

De Jon, the magician, Friday, February 9th.

The Smith-Spring Holmes Orchestral Quintet, Monday, April 2nd.

As you will observe the first number begins next Tuesday night. The teachers have been selling these tickets for the last two weeks, however, we do not have more than half enough sold at this time, to pay for the course. We need the support of all of those people that believe in having entertainment of this type both for the schools and for the community as a whole.

In the first number, Princess Nadonis, one of the Ojibwas, a poet and writer, captivates the audience by her recital of original Indian stories and poems. She has appeared on the program in Europe in the Royal Palace in London and has entertained many prominent people both here and abroad. Three other Indians, one of them being Chief Konoka White Eagle of the Winnebago Tribe, also appear on this program with her. They will entertain with Indian costume, lullabies, war dance, etc.

The second number is composed of four musicians of established reputation rendering a program of solos and ensemble work with violin, cello, piano and voice.

The third number is Ash Davis, the cartoonist. Davis has been on the platform as cartoonist and lecturer for a number of years and has press comments from cities all over the United States praising his ability as an entertainer and as cartoonist. The Cincinnati Post says that "Ash Davis, the cartoonist, delighted his large audience at the Odeon last night." Warren (Pa.) Tribune says, "Ash Davis was the last number, and best of all; it was a fitting climax for our course."

The fourth number, Harold Morton Kramer, a novelist, soldier, journalist and lecturer of note is the author of such books as "The Rugged Way," "The Castle of Dawn," "Gayle Langford" and others. The Frankfort (Indiana) Morning Times says: "More than 2,000 people packed the auditorium and galleries to hear Kramer who was given round after round of applause."

The fifth number, the Pelletier Players, consisting of three women and two men, is an organization similar to that of the Ben Greet Players. This one alone is worth half the price of a season ticket.

The sixth number, De Jon, the magician. Most of us are interested in the tricks of the wizard and enjoy an evening of magic. If not instructive, it certainly is entertaining.

The last number is Smith-Spring-Holmes Orchestral Quintet which renders a program including trombone and cornet solos and duets, violin, flute, bassoon, cello and vocal solos, saxophone selections. This quintet was one of the prize numbers at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. This is a high class musical organization whose appearance cost us considerable. Since Maysville is getting to be a musical town, we should have the house crowded to hear a program of this sort rendered.

When the teachers solicit you, please get the impression that they are working for the educational uplift of the community and that you are doing no more than your duty in helping to promote a program of this sort.

REVIVAL AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OPENS

DR. JOHN F. VINES, Roanoke, Va.

Considering that it was Monday night, there was a splendid audience at the Baptist revival last night. Evangelist Vines failed to make connections en route here from his home at Roanoke, Va., and was unable to reach Maysville Monday. Pastor John A. Davis preached last night.

Mr. Carter, the song leader, is getting together a splendid chorus choir and a good sized Junior choir. Mr. Carter's solo Monday evening was greatly enjoyed and many compliments were heard in the audience.

Evangelist Vines arrived Tuesday morning and preached his first sermon Tuesday afternoon. He will preach again this evening at 7:30 o'clock and the public is cordially invited to hear him. Those who miss this series of sermons will miss a rare treat.

CARDINAL OATS TO BE PUT ON THE MARKET.

Colonel J. Barbour Russell Tuesday received copies of the new labels for a new brand of rolled oats to be put on the market by the Quaker Oats Company. These oats will be known as "Cardinal Oats." SCHOOL BOARD RATIFIES ITS FORMER ACTION

Fearls Place Is Again Chosen as the Proper Location for Lewisburg Consolidated School.

Following the meeting of the Mason County Board of Education held here Monday, the members went in a body to the Lewisburg neighborhood to again view the several locations offered for the proposed new consolidated school at that place.

Several months ago the Board viewed these locations and selected the location on the Fearls farm just west of Lewisburg as the most suitable for the proposed new building. There was much complaint against this location and a petition signed by many patrons of the school was filed with the board asking them to reconsider. They granted a re-consideration but on Monday after looking over all proposals and studying each one carefully, they again decided that their first judgment could not be improved on.

The selection of the Fearls place will be finally certified by the board and the proposed new building will be erected thereon.

WALLINGFORD CASE POSTPONED.

The case of B. W. Wallingford, et als., vs. Bank of Maysville, Executor of Mrs. Kate Wallingford, which is a motion for removal of the executor which was set for trial in County Court Monday was postponed until the regular term of County Court in November because of the absence of attorneys from the city.

MANY LAY IN COAL SUPPLY.

The unloading of a stranded coal barge at the East End sand bar Monday gave many an opportunity to lay in their winter supply of coal without cost. On the Aberdeen grade Tuesday morning many piles of coal could be seen gathered there by Aberdeen residents from the sand bar.

SALARY ARGUMENT CAUSES LEXINGTON TO QUIT LEAGUE

Six Players Quit Studebakers and Last Three Games in League Season Are Forfeited By The Club.

Tuesday's Lexington Herald says: Claiming that six of his regulars jumped their contracts Monday morning, Business Manager Jess Morton of the Lexington Studebakers announced Monday night that Lexington had forfeited the remaining three games on the Studebaker schedule, including the contest scheduled for Mt. Sterling Monday afternoon.

The argument that caused six of his players to leave the club resulted from a disagreement over salary. Manager Morton said Monday night. One of the players wanted his salary paid to October 12, the date on which the season originally was scheduled to close. Manager Morton contended that October 4 should be the last day for which the players should receive payment. Five others joined the first who mentioned the matter, and the six refused to go to Mt. Sterling to play the game scheduled for Monday afternoon.

Manager Morton refuses to give the names of the players who left the club. He has reported the case to Thomas M. Russell, of Maysville, president of the league, who is expected to take up the disagreement with Secretary Farrell of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs.

As a result of the forfeiture of the two games to Mt. Sterling and one game to Winchester, Lexington loses all chance of finishing in the first division. The incident will not affect the fight for first place between Cincinnati and Paris.

ARTIFICIAL WAVE RELEASED IN OHIO.

Official announcement that the artificial wave to carry coal down the Ohio River from Point Pleasant and Huntington, W. Va., was started above Wheeling Monday morning, was made by Colonel Charles W. Kutz, Cincinnati, United States Division Engineer. It is estimated there is moving on this wave between 50,000 and 75,000 tons of coal destined for Portsmouth and Cincinnati. It is said eight fleets of barges loaded with coal started from Point Pleasant, and two fleets from Huntington. It is hoped that the wave will supply water sufficient to float from sand bars in the lower Ohio a number of vessels now stranded upon them.

OUR POLICY:

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section as against another. And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the county as a whole.

THE BONUS VETO.

In the clearest possible terms the President sets forth in his message to Congress the undeniable reasons against the enactment of a bonus law granting large sums in the aggregate to the American veterans of the great war. His veto is stronger even than it was expected to be—so strong in its terms, so unassailable in its logic, that it can hardly be conceived that it will fail to appeal to one-third of one branch of Congress an defeat the measure at least for this session.

The President puts his objections distinctly upon the grounds of the inability of the country at this time to bear the burden of the bonus. He shows, in figures that cannot be questioned, that the Treasury as in no condition now to meet the additional drafts that the proposed bonus will entail, estimated at $146,000,000 during 1922, $225,000,000 for 1924, 114,000,000 for 1926 and $312,000,000 for 1928, a total in four years of $796,000,000, and a total estimated cost of more than four billions.

With no means provided in the measure for the raising of this additional revenue; with a deficit now in immediate prospect owing to the fact that government expenditures have not been brought down to the point of income; with enormous sums going out annually in support of the disabled veterans of the war, aggregating, it is estimated, more than $25,000,000 before the end of the course of provisions for their care, treatment and aid, the President regards this proposition as unfair to the country, as imposing an unjust burden upon the people, and as therefore inadmissible, even though there prevails a spirit of unbounded gratitude for and sympathy with the men who gave themselves in the nation's service in time of its great need.

Expressing the keenest concern for the welfare of those for whose aid this bill has been drafted and passed by Congress, the President rejects it as a dangerous abuse of the public credit. The certificate plan of payment proposed by it is, he says, "little less than certified inability of the government to pay, and invites a practice on sacrificial barter" which he cannot sanction.

In one paragraph the President strongly states the whole case against the bonus:

To add one-sixth of the total sum of our public debt for a distribution among less than 5,900,000 out of 110,000,000, whether inspired by grateful sentiment or political expediency, would undermine the confidence on which our credit is built and establish the precedent of distributing public funds whenever the proposal and the numbers affected make it seem politically appealing to do so.

No matter what the political expediency of their votes to override the veto, members of Congress cannot fail to recognize the sound common sense of the President's message. He has pointed out the wrong that is proposed and stated the case for the people who must pay the cost of this measure. Many of those who will vote to pass the bill, the objections of the President to the contrary notwithstanding, will privately applaud his course. Many of the veterans of the war, organized and otherwise, are themselves strongly opposed to the "adjusted compensation" plan. The people generally, outside of circles identified with the interests of the veterans of the war, regard the measure from precisely the same standpoint as that taken by the President in his veto.

President Harding has by his action in this matter rendered an invaluable service to the country.—Washington Star.

AGAINST PUBLIC WELFARE.

On the eve of the settlement of the shopcraft strike, the American Federation of Labor went on record as endorsing the strike and promising the strikers "every assistance within its power." At the same moment that the shopcraft leaders were practically admitting that they had been wrong, the Federation of Labor was encouraging them to go on with the strike. Thus the Federation adds to its list of previous acts against public welfare and fair dealing. The Federation backed the policemen's strike in Boston; it backed the threat in 1916 to tie up the railroads of the country unless Congress passed a specified bill by a specified hour; it backed the steel strike engineered by the I. W. W. leader, Foster, whom Gompers later denounced for his radicalism. The shopcrafts struck against a reduction in wages ordered after due hearing of both sides before the Railroad Labor Board composed of representatives of labor, of the roads, and of the public. It was a strike against the government and against the people, who pay the costs of operating the railroads. The leaders of the shopcrafts have no negotiated settlements with many roads, under which the men go back to work at the wages fixed by the Board. Yet the Federation of Labor goes on record as endorsing the strike. As often remarked, union labor can be injured—only by its supposed friends.

THE ECONOMIC CIRCLE

The wages paid in any industry determine to a large extent the price at which the products of that industry must be sold. If, therefore, the wages of one industry be raised in order to meet the cost of living, the price of the products of that industry must also be raised, and then some other industry must raise its wages in order to meet the increased prices of the first industry. Thus an endless round of increasing wages and increasing prices is put in operation. Moreover, if wages are to be fixed upon the basis of the cost of living, it will be to the interest of every workman to increase his cost of living, so that he may get still higher wages. Thus wastefulness and extravagance would be encouraged, and, with the waste, the demand for goods would increase and cost of living further advance. In this respect, too, there would be set in motion an endless round of increasing wages and cost of living. Theoretically, a wage based on the cost of living is plausible; in practice it is impossible of accomplishment, for each advance in one necessitates an increase in the other.

Commenting upon the report that McAdoo will seek the Democratic nomination for President, one paper says that the Democrats might do worse. Well, possibly.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS

AGAIN SELECTED

The marked success of last season's advertising in daily papers all over the country has resulted in The Globe-Wernicke Co., makers of sectional bookcases and office devices, deciding upon a repetition of that campaign through their dealers and branches. The Globe-Wernicke Co. found that advertising in the local daily paper, in cities where the gods are on sale and where interested parties could see and buy the gods, produced definite and satisfactory results.

And the public was better served and benefited by having its attention called to modern and progressive devices and the local dealers handling them.

The decision of this company, the largest of its kind in the world, is but one more strong endorsement of local newspaper advertising.

DAIRY INDUSTRY
IN MASON COUNTY
CONSTANTLY GROWS

Income From Dairy Products in Mason County Assumes Large Proportions—Now Amounts to Third of a Million.

Very few people in Mason county have any conception of the magnitude that the dairying industry is assuming.

If we take the figures given out by the cream stations in Maysville, and the amount shipped directly by the farmers themselves, we have a total of 900,000 pounds of butter fat produced and sold in Mason county annually. This is considered a very conservative estimate.

At an average price of 30 cents per pound, this is adding to the pockets of our farmers more than one-third of a million dollars annually. $300,000 a year is some pin money.

Best of all the farmer is paid cash for his cream. There is no uncertain waiting for the checks. These checks are turned into the local banks and places of business in a constantly increasing stream and make the wheels of industry and business move along with dispatch and celerity.

It does not take much vision then or imagination to see what a tremendous influence and impetus the testing of dairy cattle will have upon the dairying interests in this county. To have it known and published that all the dairy cattle in Mason county are free from tuberculosis will be an immense asset to the county.

The great packing companies have already agreed to pay ten per cent. more for beef cattle and ten per cent. more for hogs from this county when this testing is completed and is an accomplished fact.

The Federal veterinarian is working energetically to complete this test in Mason county and he deserves the hearty cooperation of every citizen.

Allen county farmers are contributing toward the success of the drive which the extension division of the college of Agriculture is conducting throughout the state against scrub breeding animals. County Agent A. M. Allen says. Thirteen of them have enrolled in the movement by agreeing to use nothing but purebred sires in all their breeding work.

"No situation that has presented itself in the Old World since the armistice is less worthy of American interference than the defeat of the Greeks and the threat of the Turks to regain their old capital. If this country had taken a hand in Old World settlements, there might be some foundation for the present urge that we aid in restoring order in Asia Minor. If America were responsible for present conditions there, it might be said with justice that the United States should take a hand in bringing about a settlement.

"But the fact is that what we find in the Near East today is simply the result of traditional European diplomacy seen at its worst. In their progressive invasion of Turkish territory the Greeks have had the tacit support of Great Britain, while the opposition of Turkey to the Greek inroads has had similar support from France. Various arrangements have been attempted to satisfy both the British and French. There was created the neutral 'Zone of the Straits,' throwing the Turks back into Asia with the loss of their capital, Constantinople, which they had held for about 470 years. Thrace was turned over to Greece with its capital city, Adrianople, which the Turks had occupied practically continuously for 550 years. Greece was encouraged to occupy a large portion of Asia Minor, still further driving back the Turks with the loss of another of their traditional cities, Smyrna, which they had held for about 500 years.

"The merits of the diplomacy by which Greece, with the approval of Great Britain, extended and increased her pressure against the Turks, and Turkey, with the approval of France, increased her resistance to the Greeks is not for the United States to determine. It is none of our business, but every intelligent observer in this country knew that an explosion in the Near East was bound to come if such tactics were adhered to. Probably the leading expert on Near Eastern affairs is Gen. Townsend who led the British expedition up the Tigris in the war and was captured by the Turks at Kut-el-Amara. He says it is foolhardy to hold Constantinople, that it should be returned to the Turks at once and all other Turkish terms of peace accepted.

"As regards the Near East, Europe has made its bed and now can lie in it. Were the United States to inject itself into the mess, it would mean not only the expenditure of much money and probably many lives, but it would incur also the certain enmity of either Great Britain or France, not to mention Greece and Turkey.

Bryan Greenlee, grocer, 139 West Second street, Maysville, says: "I suffered a lot from backache and there was a deep seated pain across the small of my back. When I did any stooping, I could hardly straighten again. My kidneys did not act regularly so I went to Wood's Drug Store and got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's soon fixed me up in good shape and I have not been bothered since."

New York. — If you are arrested, take a baby to court with you—borrow one if you don't own one. Babies are helpful in many of life's crises; but never more so than in the court room. Mrs. Rose Vengues, of Tenth street, was arrested the other day for stealing a baby carriage. There was considerable to be said on her side. The repair man who had her own in his shop didn't get it done when he promised to, and as he had left for the day when she went after it, she wheeled out another and took her child home in it. The next day, when she returned it to the shop, he had her arrested. She took her carriageless baby to court with her, and at the first word of condemnation to the prisoner, the baby set up a vehement howl. Magistrate Dale was frankly embarrassed. He turned from judicial consideration and tried to act as a peace-maker. It worked fine. But when he turned back to the mother, the yells arose once more. A few minutes was enough. No one could hear the testimony. "Dismissed," cried the judge; and the baby cooed.

I suppose there is no other word which spells luxury to the average one of us like Nassau — and the Bahamas, I am not an imperialist, wanting Uncle Sam to go about taking territory; but I always have bemoaned a bit because the Bahamas were not a possession of ours. Now, we are about to take possession in one sense, at least, and get all we can out of the leisure, that beauty, that semi-tropical quality that makes Nassau so wonderful. Club men of all parts of this country are interested in the newest club development which has its headquarters here in New York. Under the direction of a group of the best known business and club men, arrangements are being completed to the building of the Nassau-Bahamas Club, down on those care free islands. The great club house will accommodate 750 guests and will have 450 fresh and salt water baths. The Club owns 350 acres of gorgeous country, including more than a quarter of a mile of beach. Mrs. Oliver Harriman is chairman of the women's committee and Edward Cramer of Philadelphia is president of the club. The other officers are L. G. Kaufman and H. Mallinson, of New York, both vice-presidents. Among the directors are James Potter, O. H. Gruner, Stewart Waller, A. E. Mathews, Henry T. Hunt and George B. Hulme.

—NY—

It takes an intrepid policeman to collect "wet" evidence these days. A four-ounce bottle of cider, carried in the pocket of Patrolman Michael Duffy, exploded the other day while Duffy was on his way to court to appear as complainant against the owner of the store where it was bought.

—NY—

George Middleton, the playwright, and his wife, Pola La Follette, daughter of the U. S. Senator, are back from two years abroad, where Mr. Middleton not only bought and sold some plays, but produced some. "The Light of the World," which he wrote in collaboration with Guy Polton and which will be produced at the Odeon, in Paris, will be the first play of American authorship to be accepted by a state theater in France.

—NY—

Ernest Aimless has met his first defeat. He prides himself on attendance at all first night productions. The most important recent one was Ethel Barrymore in "Rose Bernd." Tickets arrived in due time, but even he confessed an added thrill in a Barrymore premiere. The audience on such an occasion is a show in itself, and he was proud in counting himself among those present. He asked the choicest lady of his acquaintance, and went so far as to make certain suggestions to her as to the gown she wore. He is not given to formalities, but on this night indulged in a taxi. The crowds gathered around the Longacre Theater to watch the fortunate audience filling in added to his glory in on small proportion. He presented his tickets to the doorman, and was greeted with the icy statement, "These are for tomorrow night." Ernest had taken it for granted that he was asked to the first showing. He did not return in a taxi, and is becoming the loss of his best lady sidekick.

—NY—

Probably nowhere in the country are husbands thought of as rakish, selfishly worldly men more than in New York. Yet here is just one example of their complete subjection: I was riding on a Third Avenue elevated train the other day, and as the train stopped at a station, I saw through the second story window into a modest apartment there stood a man, attired in his wife's dress, while she was on her knees putting trimming on it.

—NY—

Taxi drivers are about as human as anyone also when it comes down to it. An old man stood hesitatingly at the corner of a crowded street the other day. He couldn't get his courage to the point of starting across. A taxi driver noticed him, and the taxi stopped while the driver leaned over and spoke to the timid man. Such a smile of relief and gratitude as spread over that face! He got into the taxi and was driven across the street. When he got out, he made a motion as if to inquire the charge, but the driver waved his hand, smiled benignly and rove on.

EXPERT EXPLAINS
RADIO FREQUENCY
AMPLIFICATION
Interesting Wireless Telephony Problem Discussed Ably by Crosby Engineer.

Radio frequency amplification is regarded at present as the most interesting subject connected with wireless telephony, and Charles Kilgour, who is in charge of the engineering department of the Crosley Manufacturing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, operators of the radio broadcasting station W. L. W. has prepared the following interesting explanation of it. Mr. Kilgour has death in terms of the layman and made his explanation so simple that a beginner may understand every word of it. Mr. Kilgour said in part:

"A radio enthusiast is not satisfied with a mere definition of radio frequency amplification. He wants a plan of construction, for a great part of radio's fascination is due to the ease with which it is possible to try out various schemes for making audible the infinitesimal waves of the ether which constantly are lapping upon our eardrums.

"The first essential of a radio frequency amplifier is a proper vacuum tube. Any standard amplifier tube will serve. Upon the grid of this tube is impressed incoming alternating current. This is accomplished by connecting one side of the secondary coil to the grid and the other to the filament circuit. No grid condenser is used because the tube acts as an amplifier and not as a rectifier or detector.

"To cause a vacuum tube to amplify properly the voltage impressed upon its grid, it is necessary to place an impedance, or resistance, in the plate circuit, which is the connection between the plate and the filament. It also is necessary to hold the plate at a positive potential of about 45 volts with respect to the filament. This is accomplished by the familiar 'B' battery.

"The high impedance required in the plate circuit may be obtained in several ways. A high ohmic resistance may be used, but as this has a high resistance to direct current it opposes the action of the 'B' battery.

thus introducing difficulties.

"An inductance or coil may be used to set up the necessary impedance. An inductance may have very low ohmic resistance and so not interfere with the proper action of the 'B' battery and at the same time, due to its reactance offer high impedance to an alternating current such a we wish to amplify. At the high frequency handled a condenser or capacity effect is always present in a coil. This is equivalent to connecting a condenser across the terminals of the coil. This capacity, together with the inductance of the coil, forms a closed circuit which has a natural period of oscillation or is resonant at certain frequency. It is a peculiar quality of such a circuit that it offers a very high resistance to an alternating current of the natural frequency of the circuit.

"In other words such a coil introduced in the plate circuit of a vacuum tube will have a high impedance to one frequency and will cause currents of that frequency to be greatly amplified. It is essential, however, that the amplifier works properly on various wave lengths. For this reason the ohmic resistance of the coil may be increased, broadening the range of the amplifier but materially reducing its efficiency.

"By far the best solution of the problem is the use of a rather small inductance with a variable condenser connected across its terminals. The same sort of a circuit is formed as in the last case, but the variable condenser make it possible to change the natural period of the circuit and so amplify a signal of any desired frequency within the range of the condenser and coil. The ohmic resistance of such a condenser and coil may be very low and paradoxically the impedance at resonance as a consequence will be extremely high. In fact such a circuit is often said to have infinite impedance at resonance. It thus serves to bring out the maximum voltage amplification of the tube.

"Not only does this tuned amplifier give us the greatest increase in signal strength but it is very effective in eliminating interference. This feature is rapidly becoming very important with the greatly increased use of radio. Tuning the antenna circuit will, of course, cut out some interference but the addition of a step of tuned radio frequency amplification which amplifies one sharply defined and selected wave length will so increase the selectivity of a set that it must be used to be appreciated."

A NEW HUMAN AILMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 1. — A brand new affliction — the automobile foot — was discovered today by Dr. Charles Cross of San Francisco, here to attend the convention of the physical thespians. It is caused, he said by holding the foot for prolonged periods on the accelerator pedal.

The lesion caused by this strain, he said, is usually located at the second toe. Sensations of pain occur across the ball of the foot, alternately increasing and decreasing until it causes alarm, according to the physician.

"Limousine foot," Dr. Cross said, is something entirely different, being caused by insufficient walking.

GRANTED A PENSION.

The Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat says:

Mrs. Nancy Weaver, of Sardis, the widow of the late John M. Mastin, who served as a private soldier in the Seventh Kentucky Federal Cavalry during the Civil War, has been granted a pension at the rate of $30.00 per month by the Government. A. H. Dillon, the live and successful business man of Sardis, had charge of the case, which many thought was hopeless, and gave it attention during 12 or 15 months, finally succeeding in getting Mrs. Weaver's application for a pension favorably reported. The beneficiary is the second wife of the deceased soldier.
